

Tiger Track

<https://tigertrack.com.au/>

When you pick up a Tiger Track stamp book, you'll be making a commitment to yourself: to collect beautiful stamps representing your Tasmanian memories, while travelling to some of our state's most beautiful locations.

Each black and white stamp depicts a specific tourist destination, designed by award-winning Tasmanian artist Kaye Green.

Now you can find stamps at many tourist destinations. The special collection booklets are also available at various locations around the state. These are listed in orange on the "Where to find the stamps" page.

Whether you're young or old, a resident of Tasmania or an interstate or international tourist, you'll appreciate the fun and challenge that comes with collecting Tiger Track stamps.

With over 200 stamps currently available, you'll enjoy the hunt of tracking them all down, especially the elusive Thylacine stamp.

The Thylacine stamp has been hiding but is about to re-surface in June 2019. Where? There is someone VERY interested in Thylacine poo so he has gone to offer a sample. News flash: A more elusive female is coming soon!

The elusive Tasmanian Tiger (Thylacine)...the most valuable stamp of all. Use your Tiger Track book as a travel diary to record your wonderful memories of Tasmania.

The Tasmanian Royal Botanical Gardens has the Stamp of the Month in June! Go and get their stamp and help yourself to a free fridge magnet!
